

MiDA Attends the G20 in Buenos Aires, Argentina

At the invitation of President Mauricio Macri of the Argentine Republic and President Jim Yong Kim of the World Bank Group, a small MiDA delegation attended the G20 Investor Forum event in Buenos Aires on November 29, 2018 in the lead up to the G20 Leaders' Summit.

The G20 Investor Forum convened Heads of State from across the world, Ministers of Finance, Regulators, Development Finance Institutions, and Institutional Investors and Influencers, to discuss areas for collaboration that can potentially increase the flow of capital toward long-term sustainable investments in G20 markets and around the world. The objective was to discuss and adopt reforms and actions that mitigate risks and create new opportunities for investors while unlocking long-term, large-scale financing to assist countries in achieving their economic development needs by empowering businesses that pursue financial, environmental, and social returns as a core part of their operations. MiDA members discussed successful models for mobilizing private financing for infrastructure in developing countries, including expansion of the successful MiDA-World Bank partnership with local pension funds in Kenya as part of efforts from global partners to expand such initiatives and create suitable opportunities for institutional investors.
